Hands

The hands speak themselves. By them we ask, promise, invoke, dismiss, threaten, entreat, deprecate. By them we express fear, joy, grief, our doubt, assent, or penitence. With them we show moderation or profusion and mark numbers and time.

Quintilian

We, as students and faculty of Garden City High School, along with other citizens of our community, join together as we extend the hand of fellowship to Unni Larssen, our Norwegian foreign exchange student.

The Tales They Tell

The handclasp of a long-loved friend,
The clinging fingers of a tiny babe,
The friendly hands of those who wave
To greet me, strolling, on the street;
Each brings to me a message sweet.

The agile hands of pianist
That pluck the harp-strings of my heart;
The tapered fingers of the sculptor, skilled,
Who draws from out a block of stone
His dream-folk, prisoned there;
Each has a message clear to tell
If I've the wit to read it well.

The roughened hand of him who toils
That I may take my ease;
The probing hands of surgeon,
As he seeks the cause of ache or pain;
The reverent hands of one who seeks
A closer fellowship with God;
May I have eyes to clearly see
The message that each has for me.

Edw. E. Bill

As school began last fall, Garden City High School had in its halls many new students. This in itself was not unusual, even though one of these students was. Garden City's citizens had been waiting with anticipation to greet this student. In fact, they had helped to bring her to their community by, in the case of Garden City High School students, selling pop bottles, chocolate cakes, and wire hangers to raise money. From her first introduction into her American surroundings, her personality has harmonized and blended with, as well as improved, the personalities of those around her. Her sparkling smile and happy ways have enlivened the work, play, and study in which she has participated. She has helped to show that there definitely is a "golden cord close binding all mankind."

This person is no longer a new student. She is Unni Larssen, our foreign exchange student, who has been able to bind her native Norway to her host country, the United States, by extending "hands across the ocean."

It is to her that the 1960 Buffalo Staff dedicates this yearbook as a way of saying, "We've enjoyed getting to know you, Unni."

Go, you Buffs!

The Beauty and the Beast!

Unni enjoys her American family, the Ora Martins.

Unni and her Methodist friends share experiences at their planning retreat.

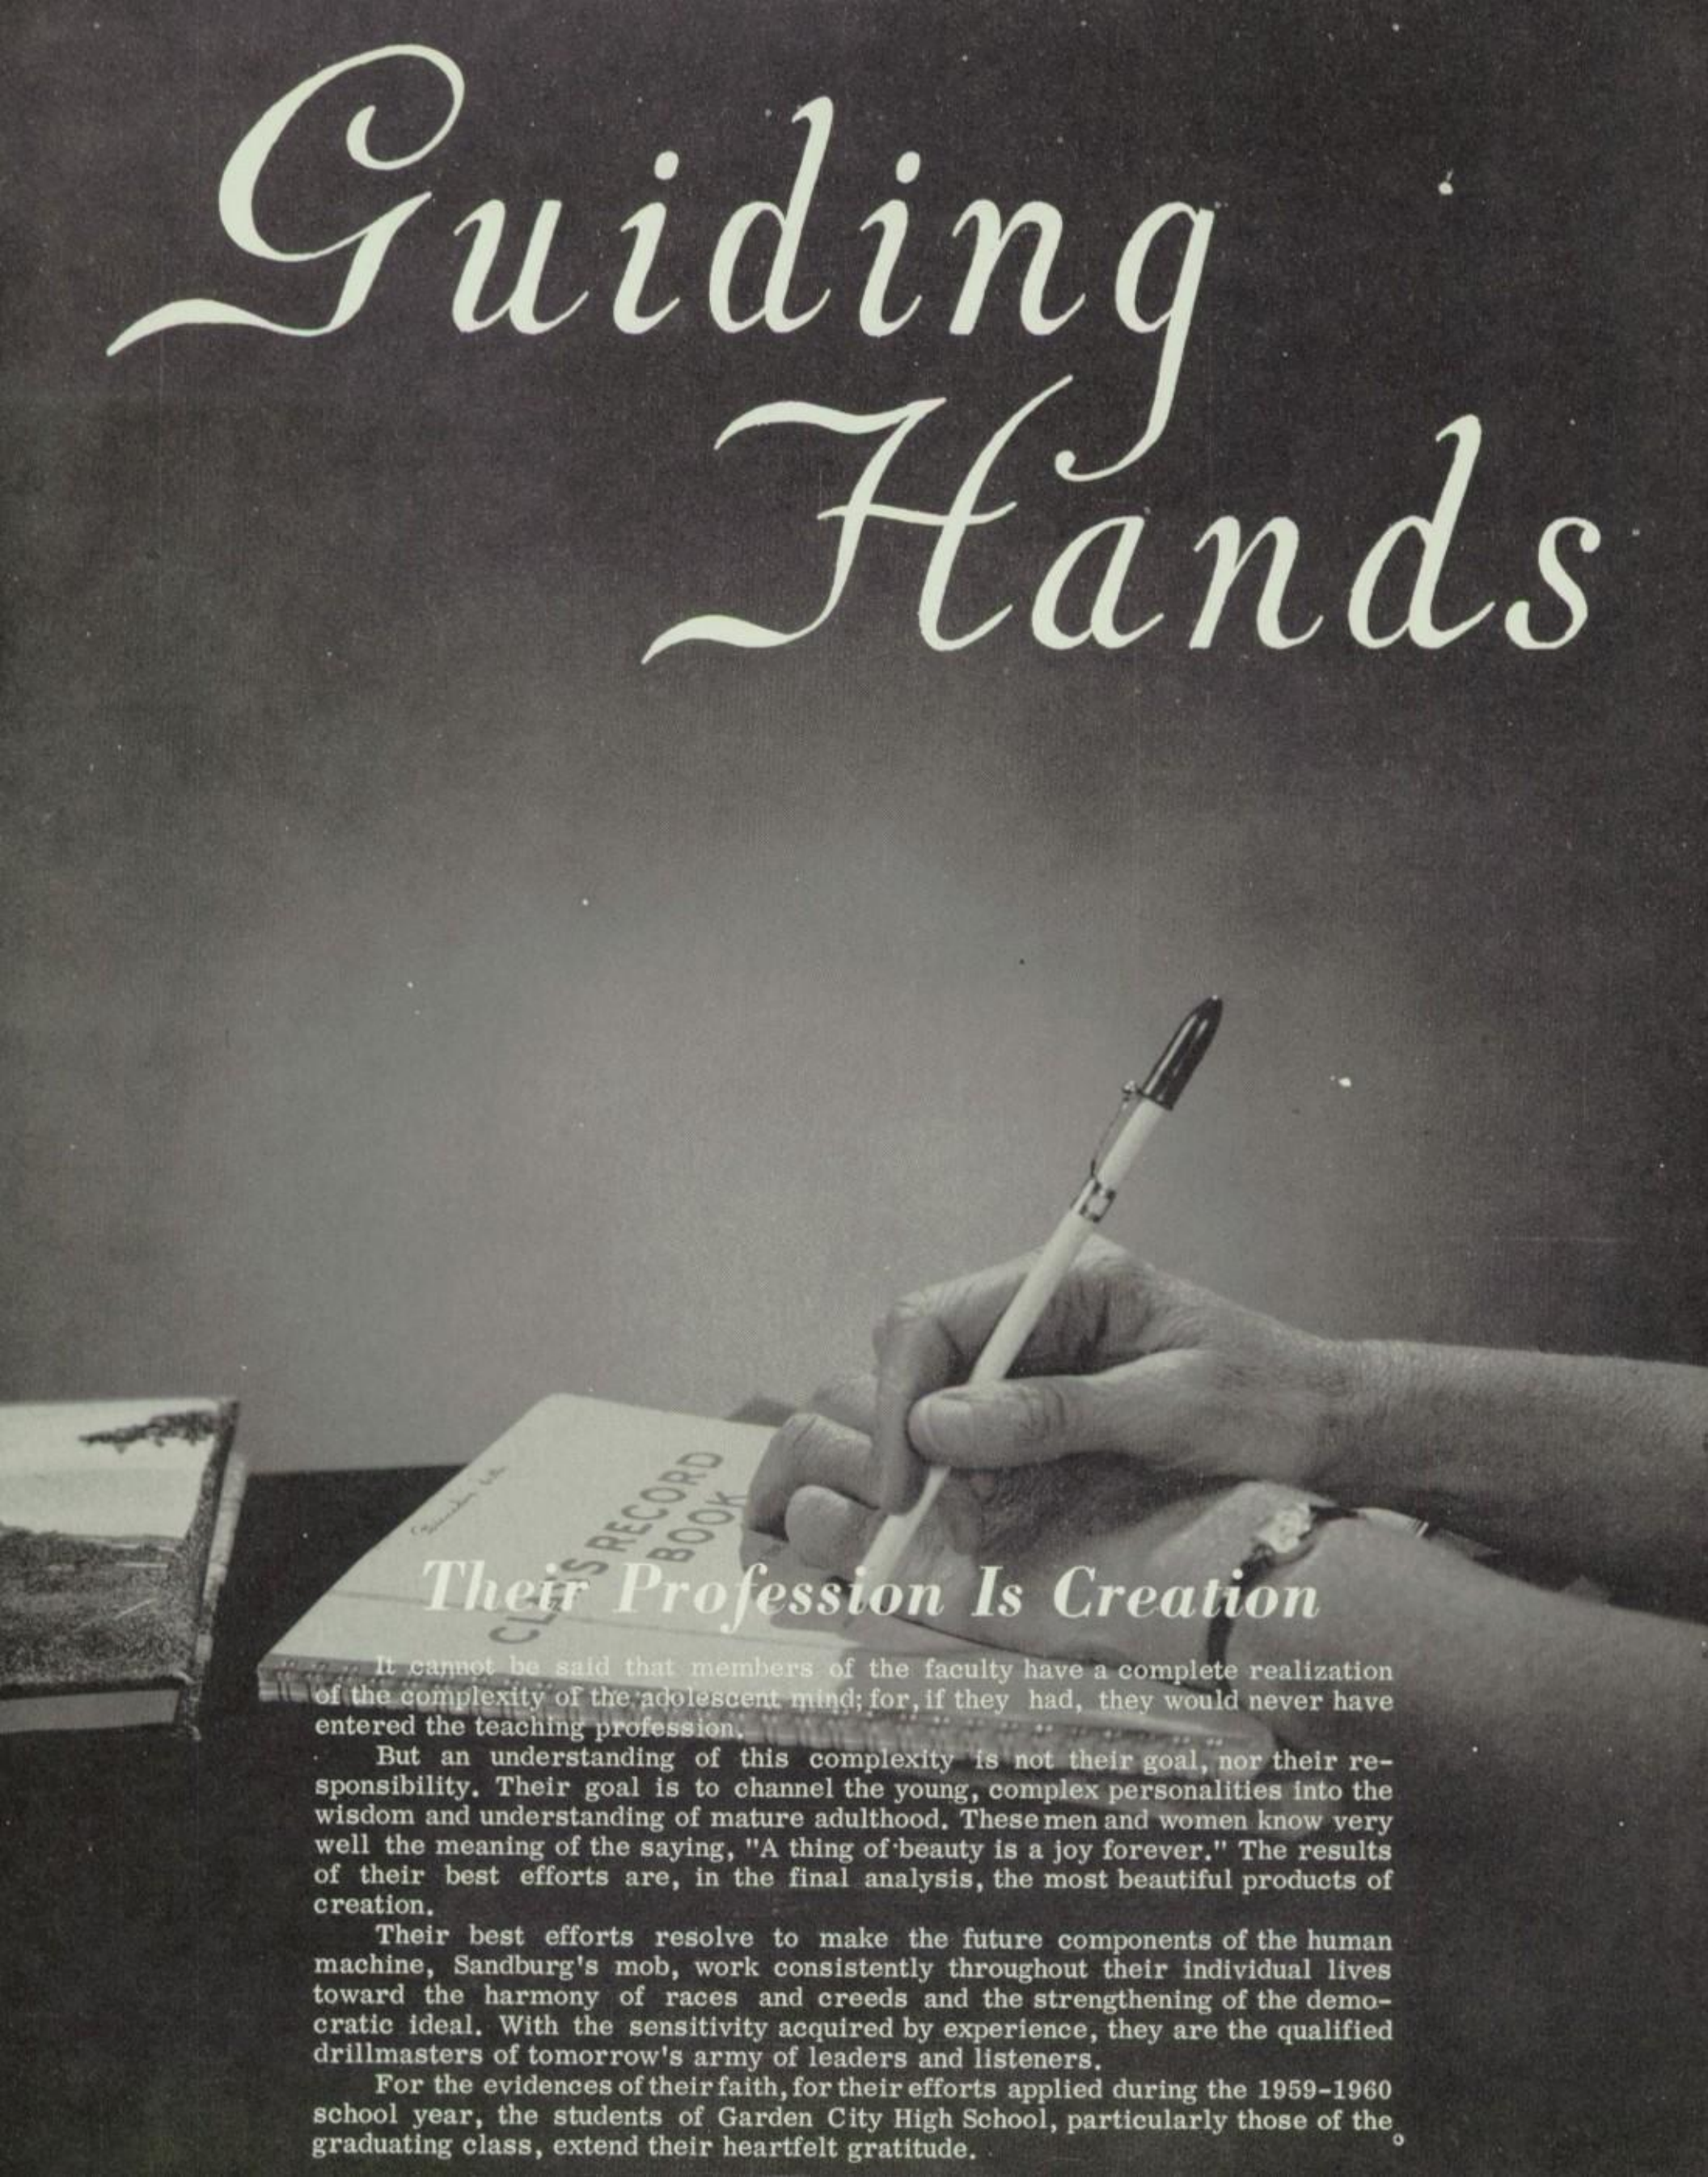
Guiding Hands



Their Profession Is Creation

It cannot be said that members of the faculty have a complete realization of the complexity of the adolescent mind; for, if they had, they would never have entered the teaching profession.

But an understanding of this complexity is not their goal, nor their responsibility. Their goal is to channel the young, complex personalities into the wisdom and understanding of mature adulthood. These men and women know very well the meaning of the saying, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever." The results of their best efforts are, in the final analysis, the most beautiful products of creation.

Their best efforts resolve to make the future components of the human machine, Sandburg's mob, work consistently throughout their individual lives toward the harmony of races and creeds and the strengthening of the democratic ideal. With the sensitivity acquired by experience, they are the qualified drillmasters of tomorrow's army of leaders and listeners.

For the evidences of their faith, for their efforts applied during the 1959-1960 school year, the students of Garden City High School, particularly those of the graduating class, extend their heartfelt gratitude.

The Supporting Hands

Through all ages men have learned this one great lesson in their quest for truth and knowledge: in ventures into the unknown, whether of the mind, of the soul, or of the universe, man has always needed a hand to support him. Early scientists envisioned Atlas's mighty hands as holding the earth firmly. Hands calloused from hard work picked up guns in the nation's struggle for birth. Hands of statesmen showed their strength in a different way as they took up pens and gavels to support democracy's struggle for recognition. Today, students are involved in one of the greatest quests, the quest for knowledge; some of the most important people who lend helping hands are members of the Board of Education. They act as a hand, a large strong hand which is always where it is needed; these members of the Board of Education are "a bulwark never failing."

Hands For Useful Purposes

We have all observed the hands of great musicians, surgeons, artists, architects, scientists, and tradesmen at work. We are always amazed at the remarkable results that they are able to obtain by using their hands. Why are these individuals able to use their two hands in such an outstanding manner and thus obtain such a high degree of proficiency? The answer is simple. Although the hands possessed by these outstanding people are the same as those of all other human beings--four fingers, thumb, and palms--they have developed such fine usage only by years of study, training, and practice. In almost all cases, individuals are capable of making excellent and valuable use of their hands, if they are determined and willing to pay the price. Our hands are similar to our other possessions in that they have little value until they are put to good use. Your hands can contribute to the welfare of man, but only you can determine how.

Leroy Hood,
Superintendent

Hands For Learning

In choosing "Hands" as the theme for this year's Buffalo, the members of the yearbook staff have indicated that hands are an important part of the life of our school. I agree with them completely.

Hands which are used for learning are important contributors to an education. Think how often you use them in writing, in shaping materials, in carrying books, in typing, and in so many other activities connected with your school life. Your hands are important to your future. Keep them busy helping you to learn; and before you know it, they will be the hands of a master craftsman, a nurse, a lawyer, a doctor, a teacher, a rancher, or any one of a thousand other occupations which require skilled hands to go with an educated brain.

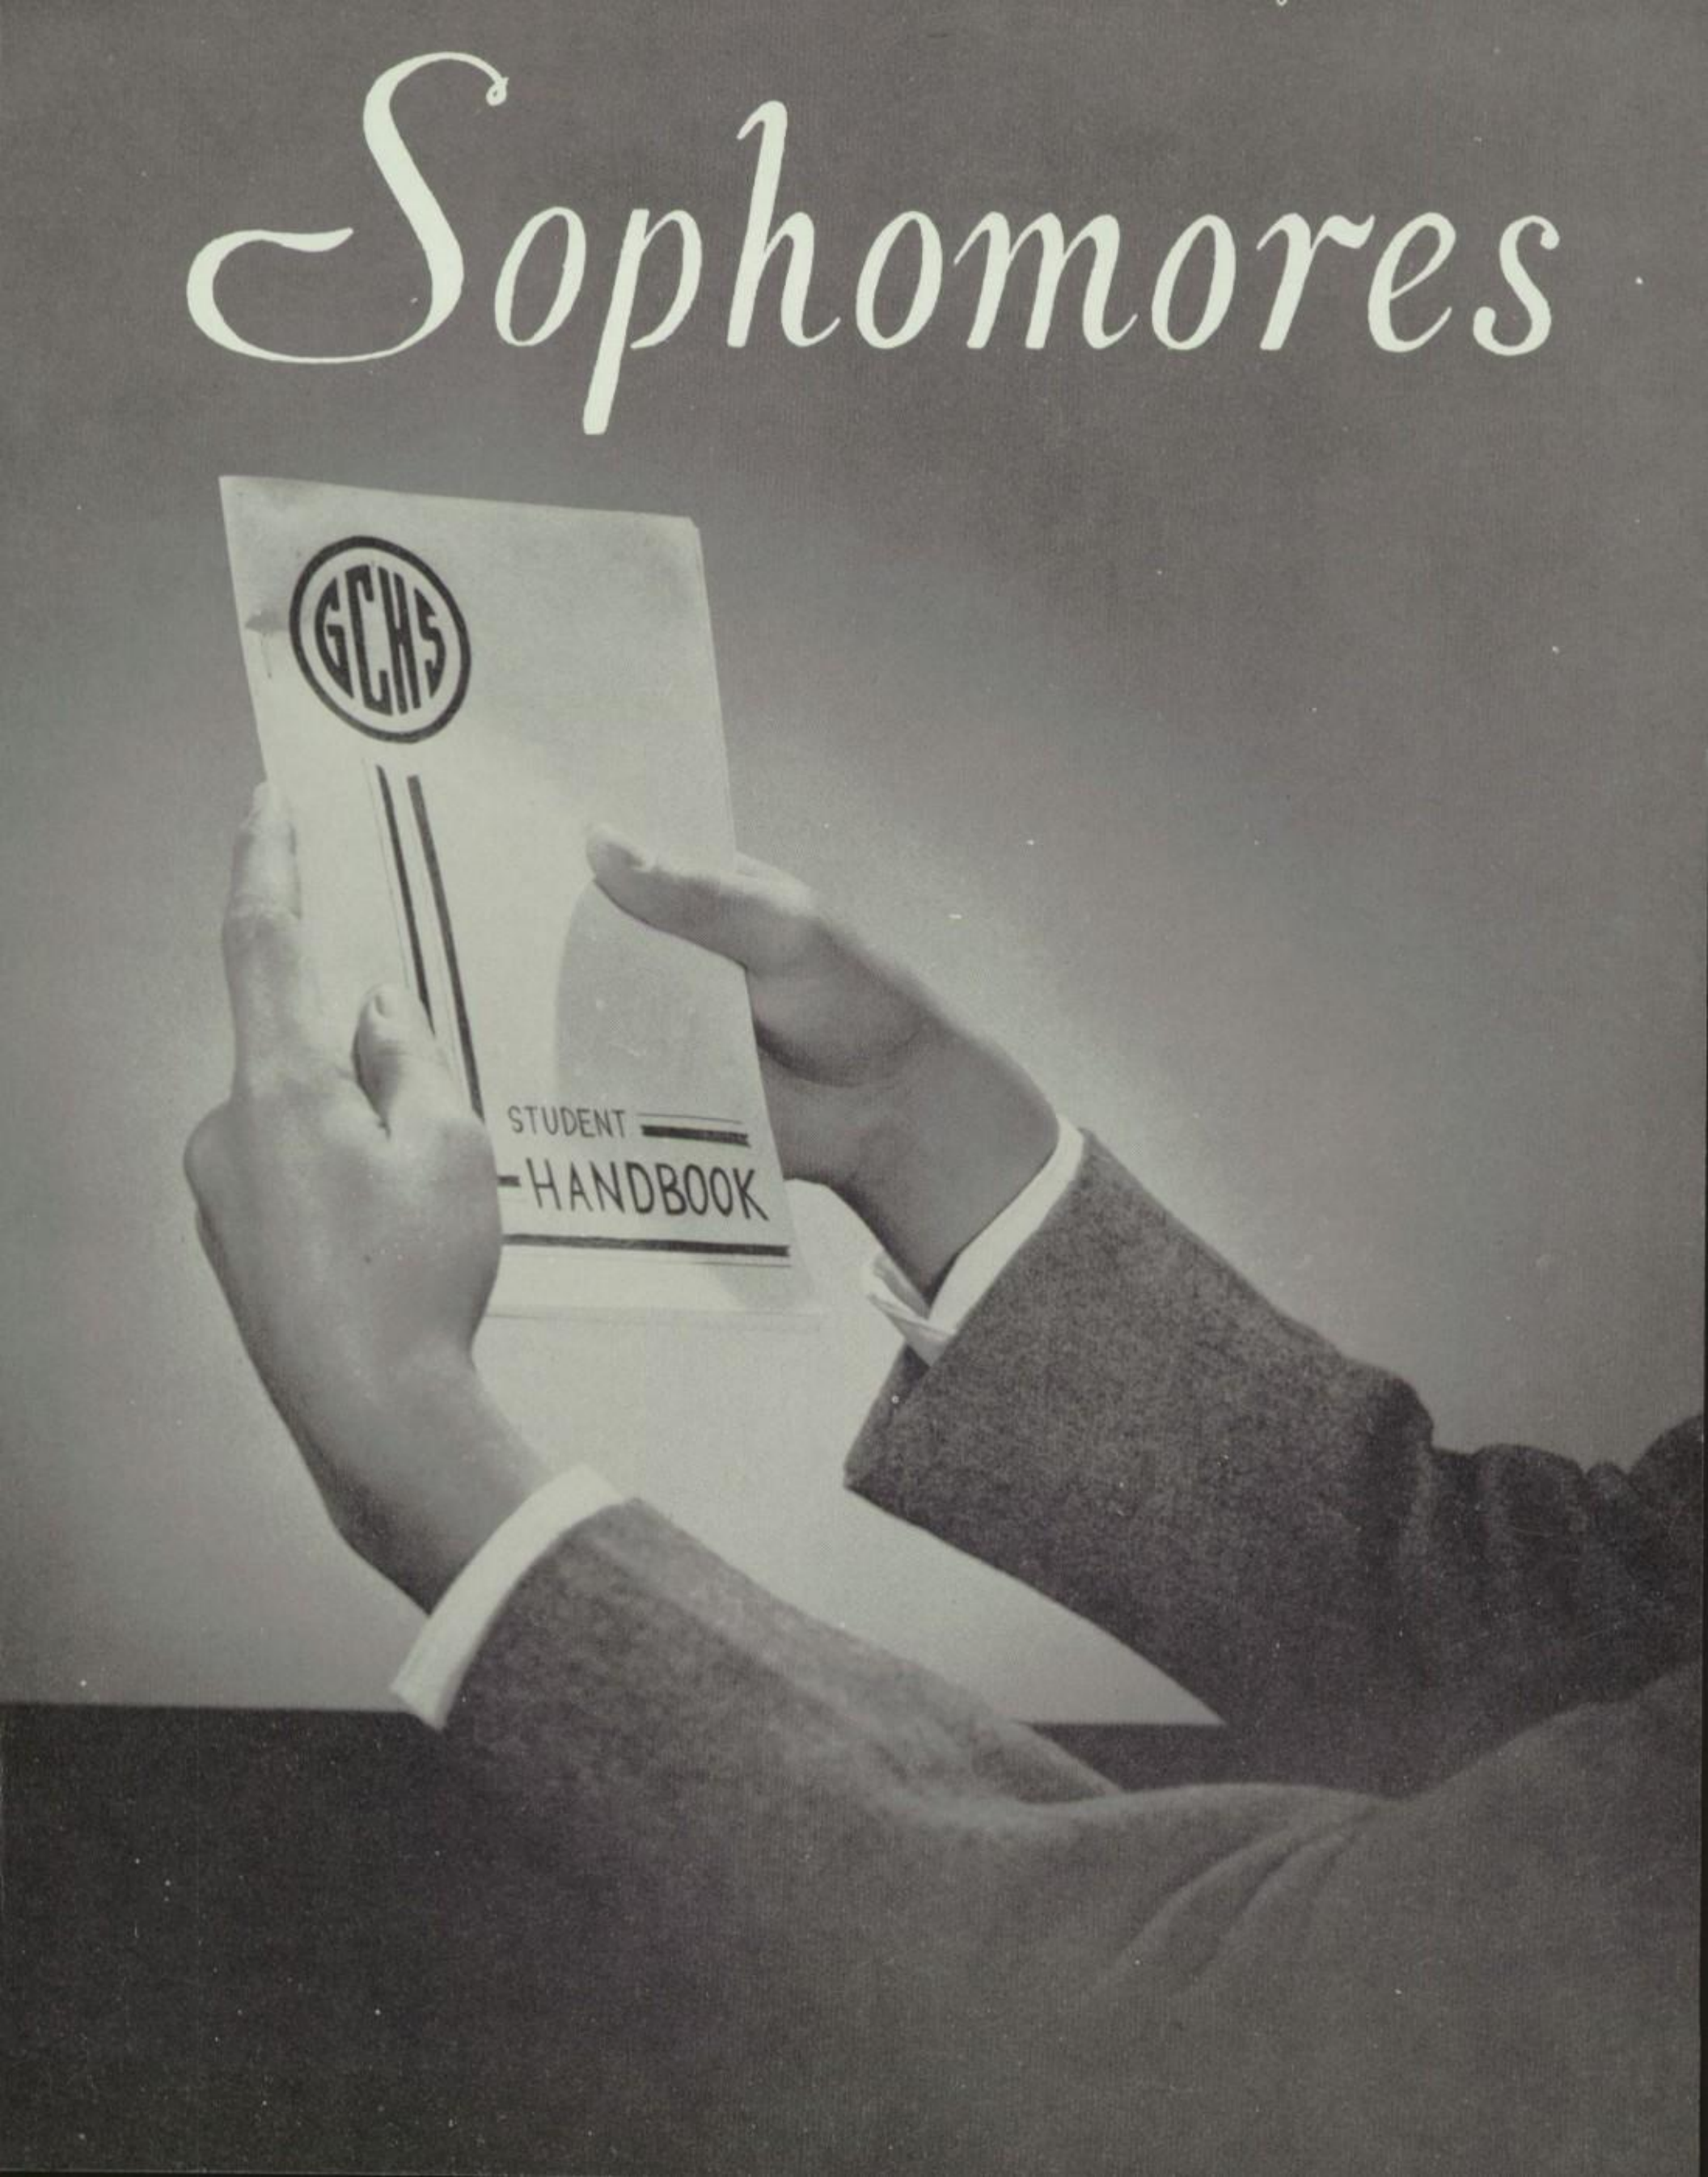
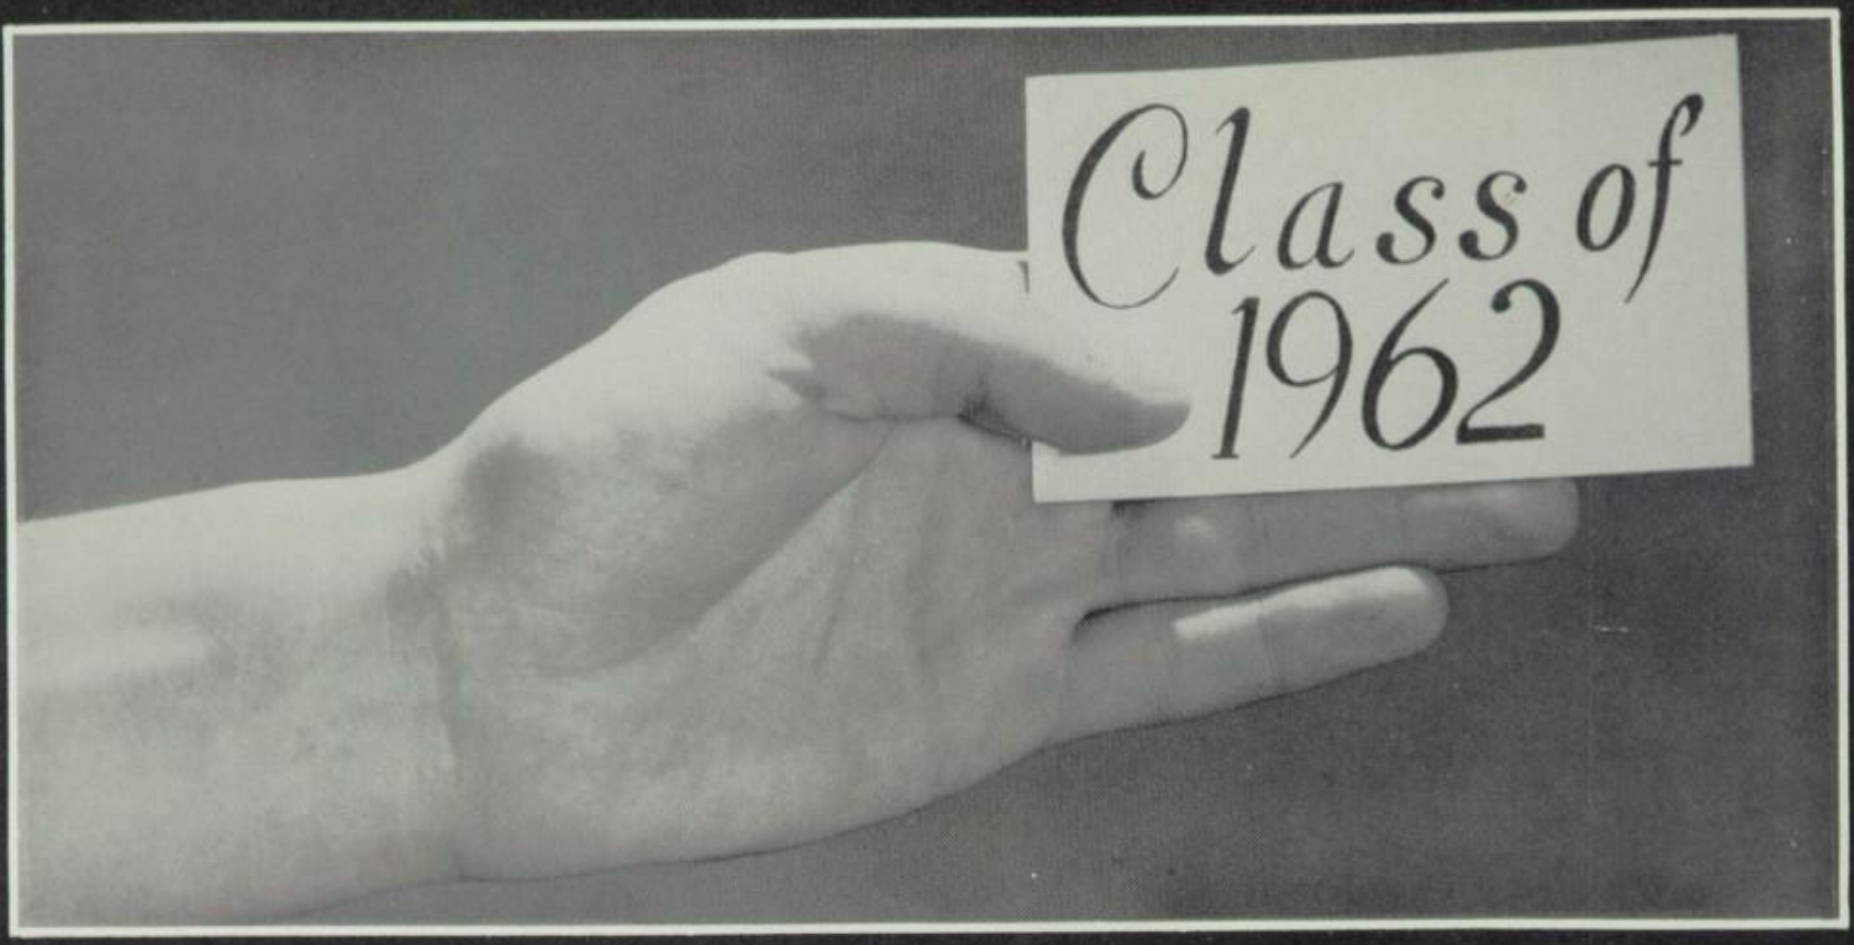
Sophomores





WITH HOPE

A great amount of work, much laughter, many tribulations and tears, challenges, failures and successes, fleeting contacts with despair, and hope for the future---these are the results of campaigns in one of the toughest battles of life, the battle of adolescence. The sophomore may welcome or discourage any of these uninvited gifts of sensation and experiences; but his remaining years in high school promise him all of these. Their immortal registration in his personality is the composition of a truly understanding adult personality.

The wisest person does not try to save his knocks but recognizes them as contributions to his resolution and strength of purpose. He avoids forestalling them only to avoid receiving them with greater impact in a later round of life.

The sophomores have begun a good fight with their enthusiastic participation in school activities. Thus far, they have made outstanding contributions to the school's various organizations and its academic fields.

Those of the Garden City High School who have the best interests of the sophomores in mind offer them a helping hand, a soothing touch, a punch in the nose, or a pat on the back--whichever may alternately suit their needs.

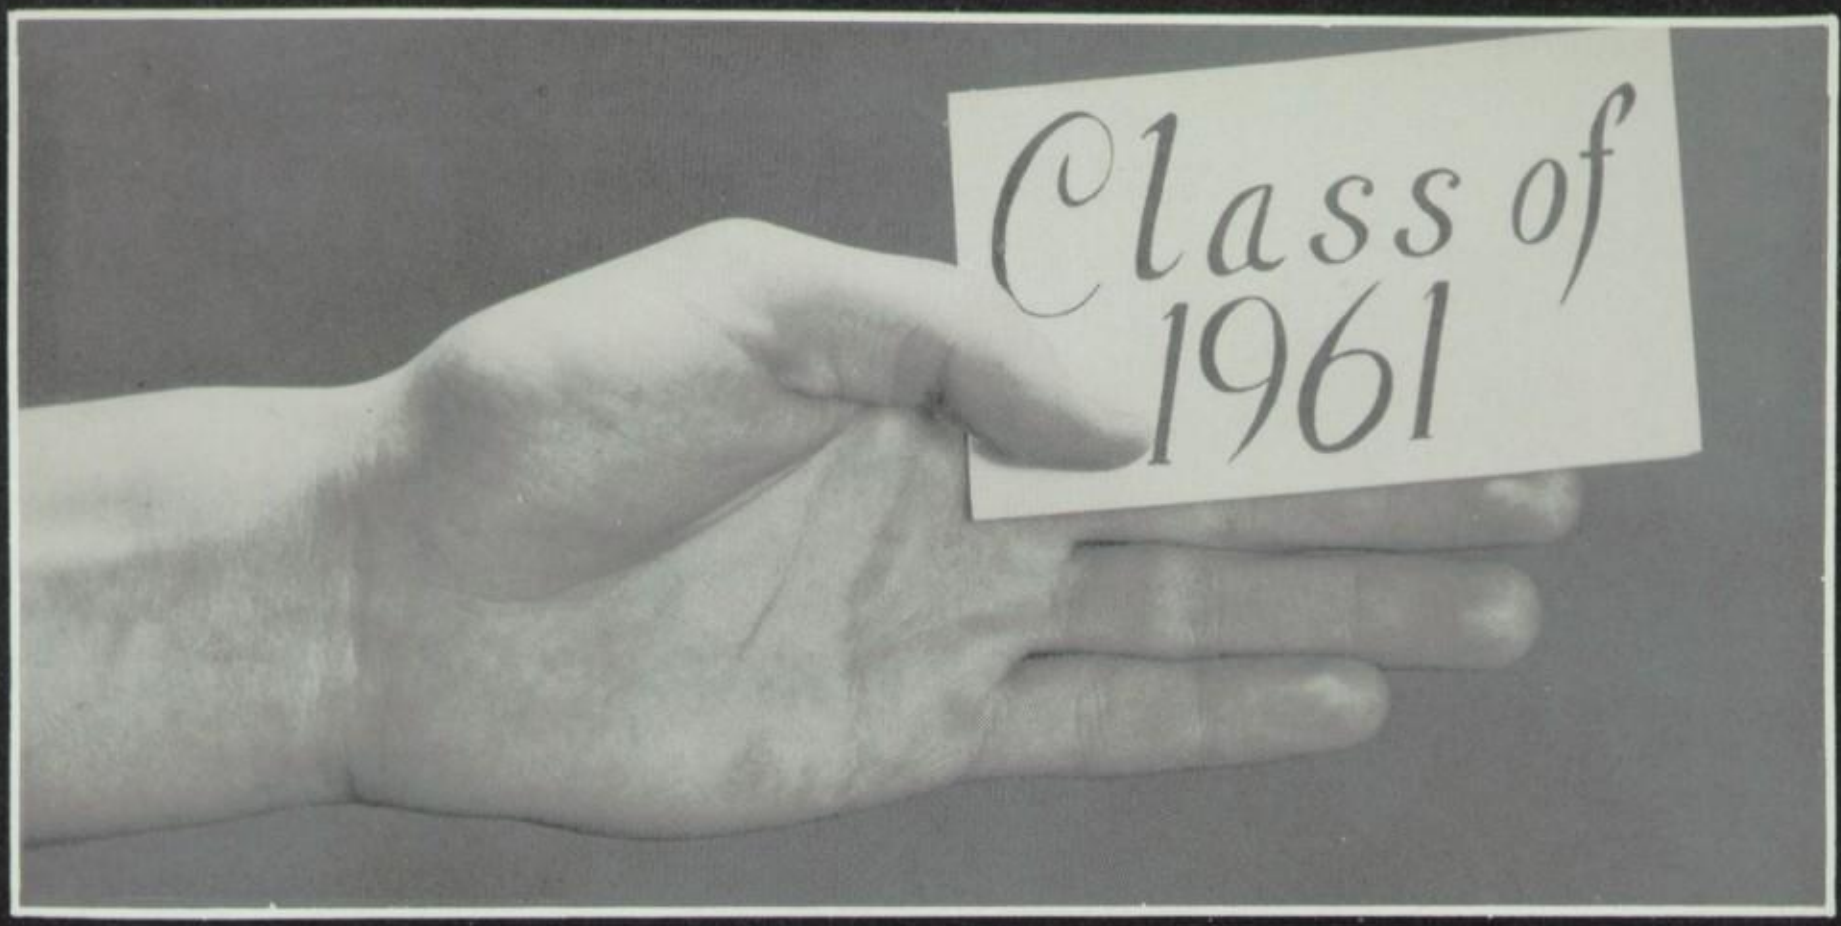
Juniors



WITH FAITH

The Juniors, during the past two years, have given future years much promise as truly fine examples of leadership ability, sportsmanship, and the many other qualities which unite to produce a lasting fire of enthusiasm for the school society.

But tomorrow they will be the center of the limelight. Today and yesterday were their moments of preparation. "Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow" is their moment of trial. Today they are learners; tomorrow they will stand before a class of learners. Today is the brink of eternity; tomorrow---a heaven or a hell; and the decision between the two will be borne by themselves for themselves, for their school, and for those who will consider age and experience as the qualifications of dependability.

A prayer is offered for them by those who feel that their trust in their successors has been well established:

Give them a steady hand that they may direct themselves and others on a true and steadfast course----
Give them a strong hand to signify their strength of purpose------
Give them a gentle hand that they may keep that which they love-----
God, give each Your Hand----mold his ambitions, his abilities, and his destiny----to the form of a whole man.

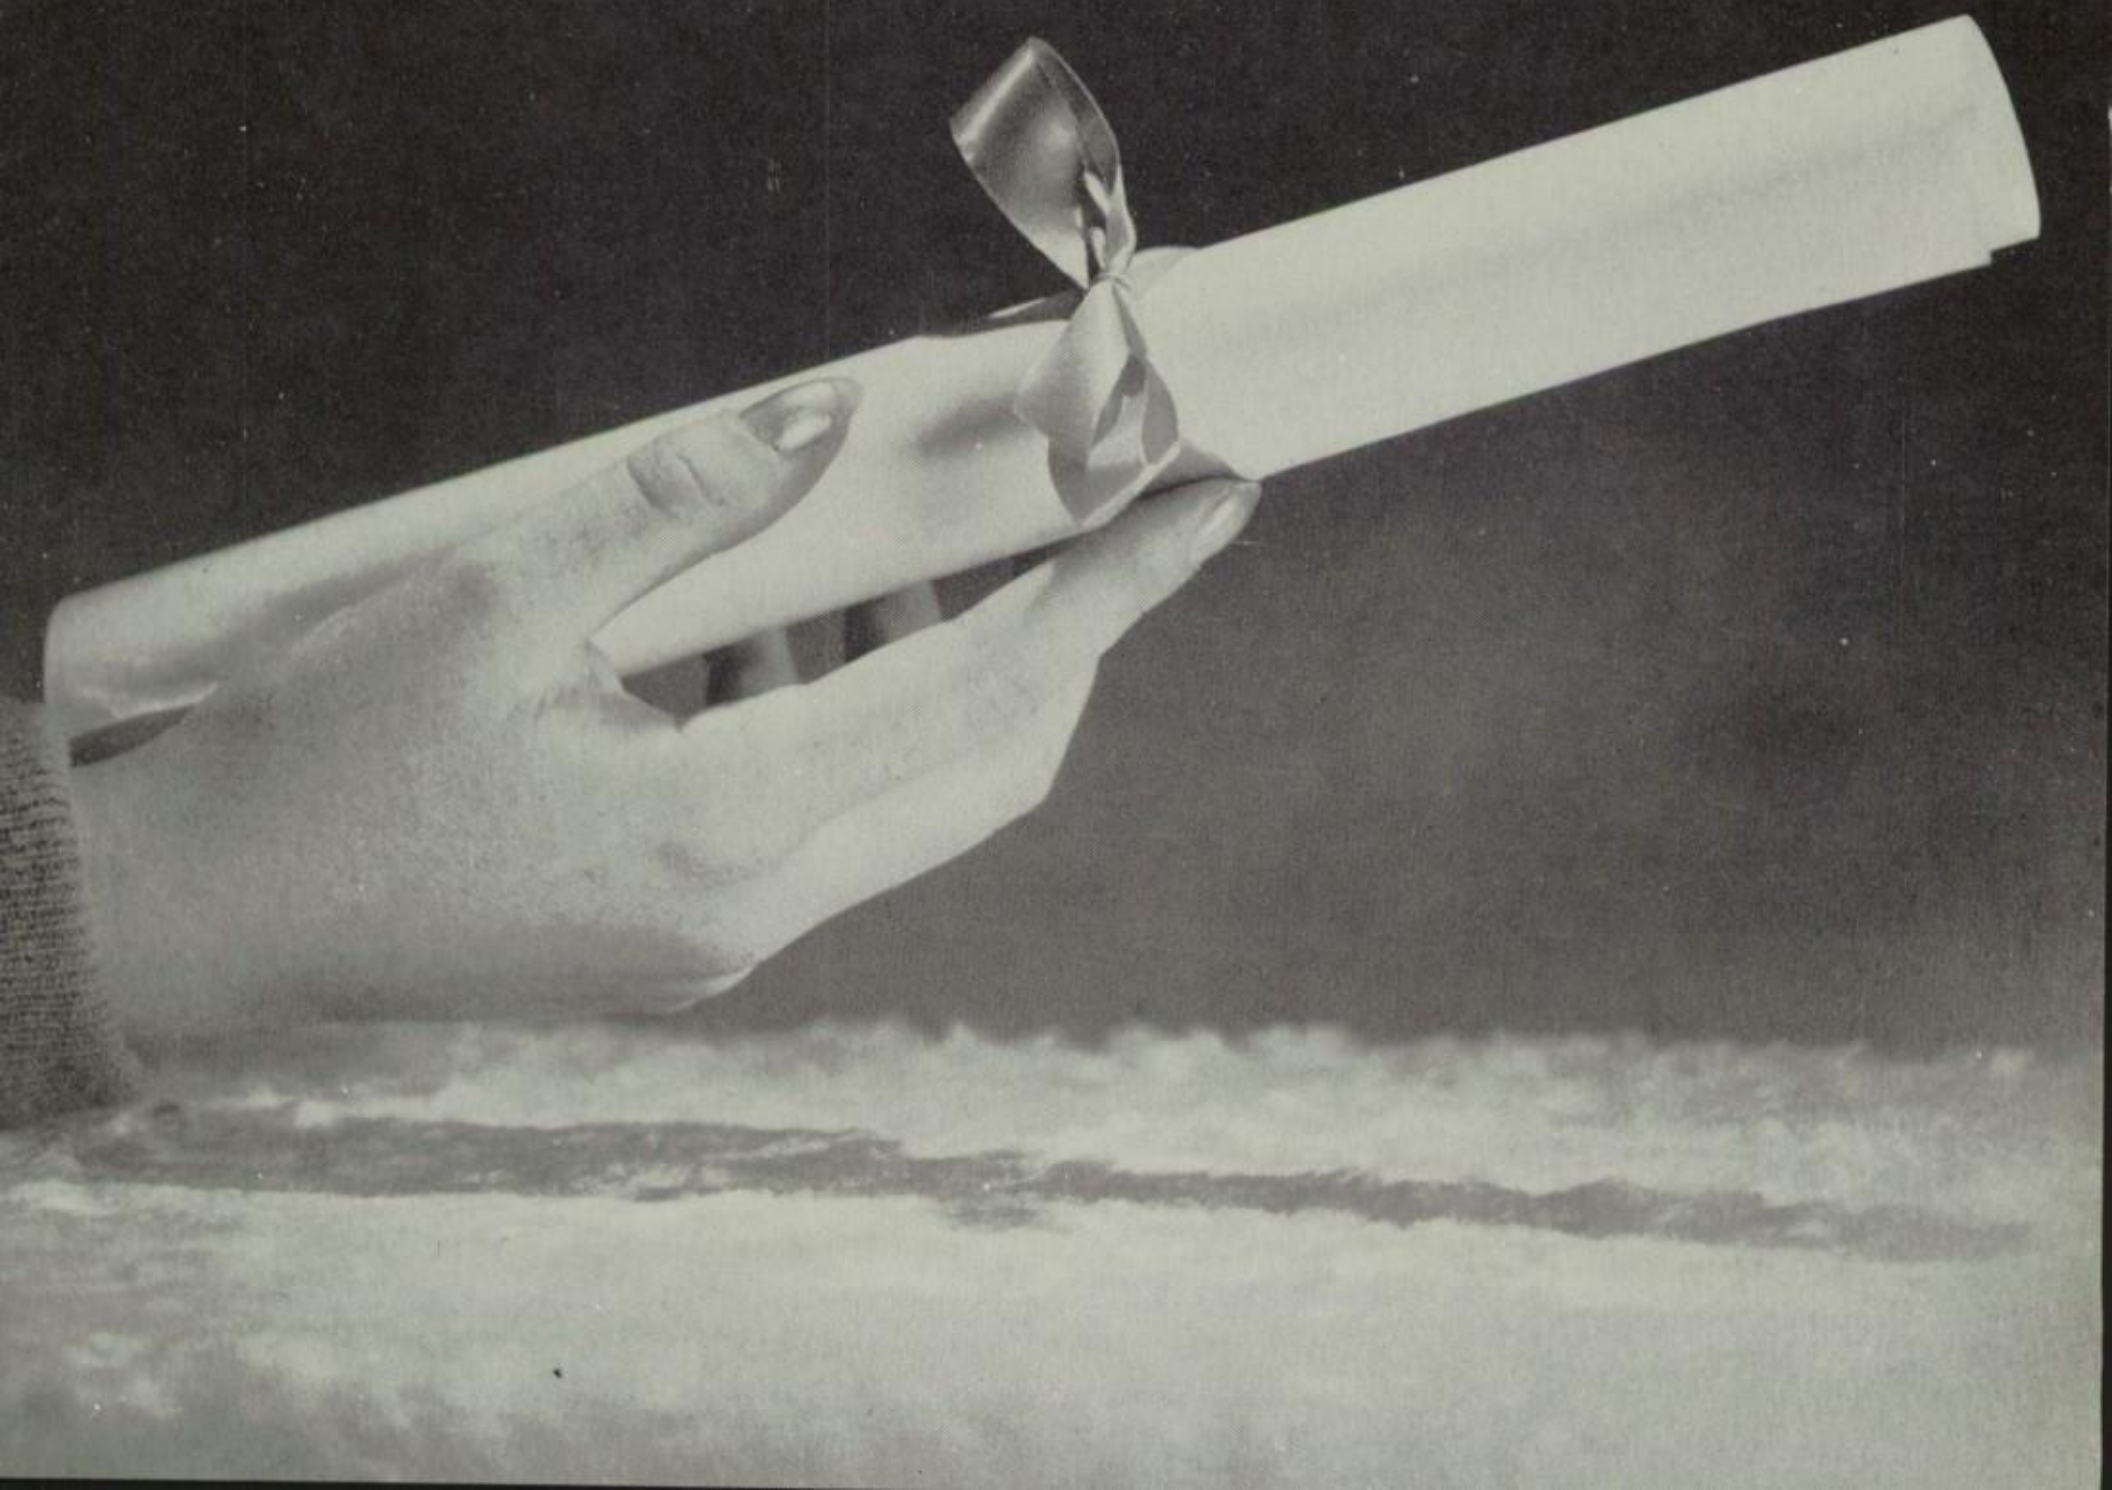
Seniors



WITH ASSURANCE

"Nothing at last is sacred but the integrity of your own mind." ------Emerson.

An immortal blueprint of the construction of an educated mind has been left to each individual by Aristotle, Demosthenes, Christ--the great educators of history. The blueprint is beautiful, flawless--but it is only a blueprint. The materials to begin the structure lie at the feet of each individual; the knowledge he needs is within his grasp; but he has no machinery to lay the foundation, none to build the walls.

The senior need only look about him. Experience--perhaps the experience of a discarded philosophy--and the effort of his hands will be his tools.

-----a nurse smoothes a feverish brow with cool, quiet hands,

-----the architectural engineer studies his work, traces with one finger the linear evidence of a materializing thought,

-----a pencil held in a hand tries to tell a million persons, "Here's the essence of truth, joy, love----" and stops.

The nurse is happy in her work. The engineer feels each day of his life's work hold a purpose, an adventure. The writer knows the limits of his understanding and the beauty of his ignorance. Each knows that his genius is the product of a coincidence, the coincidence of education and opportunity, and the sacredness of the integrity of a true ideal.

Hands of Service

One of the most active organizations in school is the Kayettes. Belonging to the Kansas Association for Youth, these girls have contributed to their school and to their community. With giving hands they presented Thanksgiving baskets to the needy and helped those abroad by making contributions to CARE. Their hearts became their hands when they helped underprivileged children by giving them a party at Christmas time. In presenting an Easter program to the student body of the high school, the members of the Kayettes extended their hands of love.

New Group Organized

The Key Club, a member of the Key International, a group devoted to service to its school and community, began in the lives of the high school students when it presented to them its charter in October of 1959. The Key Club began the year by assisting the Kiwanis Club of Garden City in selling peanuts; the proceeds from this project were used for helping underprivileged children.

In October, Garden City High School was the center of a Key Club officers' training conference, at which time the leaders discussed plans concerning programs, projects, and duties.

As a school project, the Key Club sold pennants on which were engraved the school emblem and the school name, "Buffalo."

The members of the Key Club enjoyed fellowship together throughout the year in their recreation and in their programs.

Youth Council Leads The Students' Spiritual Lives

The Garden City Youth Council has had an important part in the spiritual life of the students and of the entire community. Throughout the year the members have played an irreplaceable part in the lives of high school students with such projects as the Christmas scenes in Stevens Park, the Burning of the Greens, the Easter Sunrise Service, and many others.

The high point of the year for this group was Youth Week, January 31 - February 7. The week's activities included the following: early morning services in the Little Theater at 7:40 and at 8:40 each day, an assembly on February 3, at which time the Rev. Paul Davis spoke on "Christianity In School," the annual youth banquet at the Presbyterian Church, after which Rev. Davis spoke on the Youth Week theme, "Thy Kindgom On Earth." The youth service on Sunday, February 7, in the Methodist Church provided a fitting climax to the week, with three classmates - Jim Elland, Carolyn Hood, and Winton Hinkle - leading the meditation.

The entire group, led by President Judy Anderson, has done a fine job and has earned the thanks and the appreciation of the student body.

Preserving our Memories

The unsuspecting person who drops in on a Buffalo Staff meeting could easily do a double-take and imagine himself in a small facsimile of the city room of a large daily newspaper. On one side are people taking pen in hand to scribble, erase, and edit copy. In another part of the room are people diligently discussing how to lay out the pages of the various sections of the yearbook. Across the hall are several girls busily filling the air with the staccato clattering of typewriters, getting the final products ready for the editors' approval. Down the hall are people sorting through endless mounds of pictures, copy sheets, and identification stickers.

Certainly this is a busy-sounding group; but, far from being in a newspaper office, this is just an average evening of work on the yearbook. Perhaps more than in any other group in the school, the hands of the members of the Buffalo Staff are utilized throughout the entire year. Artists' hands produce the drawings throughout the book; the hands of future draftsmen design the pages in the yearbook; the hands of young writers work to put into words their ideas about the school.

Of course, when these hours of work are culminated in the final production, and the students first see the book, all of the work seems worth while. The patient efforts of these young hands are rewarded in a job well done and in worth-while experience gained.

Meet The Press

Under the leadership and guidance of their adviser, Mr. Horton, and with the help of Editor Nancy Smith and Assistant Editor Vicki Mercer, the members of the Sugar Beet Staff have continued to make the school paper an important part in the lives of the students. With ideas presented by the members of the Sugar Beet Staff, the school gains distinction and the respect of its own students and also of those outside of school activities. The distribution of the Sugar Beet by the staff and its leaders is an event which all the students enjoy, for the paper contains discussion of major school events, articles by members of the faculty, and bits of humor. The Sugar Beet is part of the heritage of Garden City High School, for, in years to come, it will serve as a source of information concerning days in high school. The Sugar Beet Staff has done an excellent piece of work in creating a publication which has taken its place in the history of our school.

Guiding Our School Life

The 1959-1960 Student Council consisted of many people with willing and helpful hands. These hands enabled the council members to sponsor and carry out many events successfully. Early in the year the group was called upon to be host to other student councils for the District Student Council Conference. Following this, the members literally rolled up their sleeves and made both the Homecoming Day Activities and the annual Christmas Formal very memorable, enjoyable occasions. Besides the work done for the students of the school, the Council worked to make conditions even better for all by improving the Student Council itself. Among the projects which occupied their time was rewriting the constitution so that it would be of real value to the student body. The hands of the Student Council members were instrumental in guiding the school life in all of its phases through a successful and profitable year.

Conflict Of Human Minds

Debating has been described as "the highest form of human conflict - the conflict of minds." Here, the spoken word and a persuasive manner replace the hands as the extension of the mind. Here, a person learns to think critically, and, even more important, to communicate effectively his thoughts to others.

Comprising one of Western Kansas' finest debate programs, Garden City High School's enthusiastic teams, both novice and experienced, have made many contributions this year. In terms of school distinction, perhaps the most evident contribution was the state-wide recognition attained through victories won at many tournaments, including first at the District and third at the State AA Tournament. In terms of the future, this is the group that, perhaps more than any other, will become the leaders in every field of human achievement - statesmen, clergymen, educators, and leading businessmen and women.

Future Farmers Have Busy Year

Agriculture, once the largest general field of occupation in the United States, has dwindled far below its one-time peak. However, it is still the economic backbone of our nation and has become a complex and highly specialized science. Farmers' hands once guided plows or cut grain; now they control modern machinery which does the work.

The Future Farmers of America have this year maintained the tradition of high standards in training young men for this field. The group in Garden City Senior High School has been active by participating in safety projects and by appearing on television programs, in addition to the usual activities.

Pepsters Contribute Much To School Life and Spirit

"Yea, Brown! Yea, White! Yea, Buffaloes! Fight! Fight! Fight!" These familiar words echoed many times as the Pep Club members very ably supported the Garden City Buffaloes.

With their new white sweaters, the girls of the Pep Club added much to the spirit of the games and helped in creating that vital element, school spirit. Also, the girls will long remember the good times which they enjoyed at meetings, at parties, and on trips to other towns.

Athletes Carry the Torch

It is the noble athlete who, with steady arm and unshaking hand, carries the torch of victory.

It is a light such as this that the members of the Garden City G-Club try to be, symbolizing those things in the athletic world which are distinct in their nature and meaningful to all who participate in the world of sports.

Recreation, initiation, and the all-sports banquet are a part of the Club's activities. Through these activities the lettermen of Garden City High School plan for a better G-Club, better members, and more and better school spirit.

Leaders in Spirit

During the past year the cheerleaders have typified the school spirit which has improved in Garden City High School. Theirs were some of the most active hands in constructing a real basis for school spirit. They displayed their earnest wish to work and also their enthusiasm when they held a carwash to earn money for their uniforms. When school spirit seemed to lag, the cheerleaders helped the situation by planning pep rallies, bonfires, and snake dances. They have in reality demonstrated a quality which everyone in Garden City High School would do well to imitate--the quality of sincere, always enthusiastic spirit and pep, even when the rest of the students failed.

Science Club Organized

A new organization in the school is the Science Club, which was formed for the purpose of providing a meeting place for students with like interests; another purpose has been to provide a time in which discussions concerning events, discoveries, and inventions might take place. The opportunity to further one's scientific knowledge and to develop a project in some particular field of science proved a worthy incentive for many students and gave them the chance to work with their hands as well as with their minds.

The Science Club provided a center for scholarship information in various fields of science. A sure reward for each member was the realization that he could use his mind to a greater extent and that he could go beyond the scope of a classroom textbook into self-experimentation and/or research, the basis of future textbooks.

Personal Contacts Count

The happy, energetic way of life known to high school students is, to them, almost the only way. But to adults in a busy world, high school days are mostly happy memories. To revive these memories and to show that youth of today are on the upgrade, personal contacts are necessary.

High school representatives to some adults, the patients of hospitals and rest homes of the community, were the members of the Junior Red Cross. Sponsored by the Finney County Chapter of the American Red Cross, these girls took favors as well as their personal contact at Christmas and on other special occasions. They can tell of the satisfaction found in sharing their happiness with others.

Vive La France

The French Club, after completing its second year, may look back on a year filled with many worth-while activities. These activities helped to achieve the club's objective: to acquaint its members with the customs of the French speaking peoples.

This sphere of action included a gala party with a French sidewalk cafe atmosphere. Next, on January sixth, the club held a true French feast in observance of Epiphany. An activity of a different type was the earning of Honor Pins. This included earning two-thirds of the total points possible while maintaining a C average in all other subjects.

Through its various activities the French Club has added to school life and carved a permanent place for itself in the future of the school.

Spanish Students Make Trip to Mexico City

The objective of the Spanish Club was to acquaint the members with the customs of the Spanish-speaking peoples.

One of the outstanding events of the Spanish Club members was the Pan-American Party. At this celebration the members enjoyed eating many typical Latin-American foods. Following the meal, the members danced and then elected a king and queen.

During the summer months several of the second-year Spanish students along with their advisers visited Mexico City. They thus had an opportunity to use the language which they had studied in the classroom.

Band Highlights The School Year

During the year the high school band members have presented excellent concerts for the community. Under the direction of Donald Threlkeld, the musicians have joined hands to make one of the finest bands, both in concerts and in marching. The members, with Drum Major Dennis Smith, introduced precision style marching to Garden City. The concert band made an early start in their work when they played Dvorak's "Finale" from the New World Symphony in their Christmas concert for the student body. The musical year for the band was climaxed by the much anticipated trip to Canon City. The role of the band in the school has not been limited just to serious work; the members have had their moments of fun, too. "All who attended the band's turkey dinner, their Christmas Party, and the year's finale, the Band Banquet, enjoyed the activites. The band, then, certainly has been a vital link in the school's musical life.

Music To Learn By------

The orchestra, under the guiding hands of Douglas Overland, has had a very successful year. Always able to find new challenges in the world of music, the orchestra members, many of whom have been studying privately, were responsible for accomplishments completely outside the reach of most high school students. The versatility and the success of the members were proved by the performances by the string players from the Honor Symphony at the Western Kansas Orchestra Festival. The talented hands of these young men and women have given the students a gift of music in their concerts and in other appearances; these have contributed much to a balanced high school program.

The Classic Touch

The outstanding members of both the orchestra and the band combined again this year to form a full symphony orchestra for Garden City High School. The scope of an organization of this kind extends into the repertoire of the band and also into the classic string compositions. This enables the young musicians to experience first hand the great works of music which they might otherwise not have an opportunity to play. The Honor Symphony has filled a void in the music program of the school. The success of the Symphony, directed by Mr. Overland and Mr. Threlkeld, was shown in their highly anticipated concerts and in their trip to Canon City.

Pep Band Makes Many Appearances

The Pep Band, composed of a group of select musicians from the regular band, has added a great deal to a vital constituent of the school. This element is school spirit or school pride.

The rousing sounds which the band produced helped spur the team on to victory. Those who attended the home basketball games heard and enjoyed the music which the members of this band played. The Pep Band members also played for the pep assemblies and for several games away from home.

Memories in Music

It is very probable that of all the high school memories which students carry through the years, some of the most prominent ones will center around programs presented by the Robed Choir.

Every year at Christmas time, the Robed Choir plays a prominent part in climaxing the annual Christmas Program. In the spring of the year, the group is featured in their special program, "Say It With Music."

The music which the Robed Choir provides at Commencement often brings home the sentimentality of the occasion.

The Robed Choir members use their voices as hands: they can paint musical pictures and mold impressions. The versatility of their sensitive and skillful "hands" has created an irreplaceable part of the school's existence.

Blue Notes Appear on Television

The hands of a teacher work through his mind; the hands of the Blue Notes are in their voices.

Always entertaining, the Blue Notes have captivated audiences in Garden City since their beginning several years ago. Through television appearances and through participation for programs in several cities, the Blue Notes have achieved well deserved state-wide recognition. Organized and directed by Julius Hultquist, the group has done much to maintain musical traditions which have grown up in Garden City High School.

Swing Choir in Musical Spotlight

The Swing Choir members, a group of able singers whose work has justified their name, were selected from the members of the Robed Choir. Their singing has centered around the light, musical, semi-classics which have been important to modern culture. The members have made several appearances apart from the regular performances of the entire choir and have been very popular and well accepted everywhere.

Boys' Quartet Fills Important Place

The Boys' Quartet has provided the school with a male counterpart of the popular Blue Notes. Their appearances in local musical productions have made a big hit. The fine musical program of the school, an important arm of the student body, has been supplemented by the boys' singing as they filled their important place in the vocal music section.

A Year with the the Mixed Chorus

After many hours of diligent practice, the members of the Mixed Chorus participated in the annual Christmas program and thus, through experience, advanced one rung higher on the ladder which leads upward to the Robed Choir. The chorus members then went back to their rehearsals to prepare for participation in the "Say It With Music" program in the spring.

As the school year came to a close, the members of the chorus looked back and realized that the hours spent in rehearsal were well worth the time and the effort. Looking into the future, they saw themselves blending their voices with the voices of many other members of the Robed Choir.

Buffs Improve

Hampered by inexperience and lack of speed, the 1959 G.C.H.S. football Buffaloes fought back with high team morale. Although they were downed hard several times, the Buffs bounced back to notch impressive victories over two state-ranked teams, Hugoton and Scott City. The Buffaloes got a bitter taste of what they will be up against next year as a new member of the West Central Kansas League as they lost three contests while winning only one against future W.C.K.L. opponents. With several promising sophomores gaining valuable experience this year, the Buffs should have a strong nucleus around which to build a fine team next year.

Queen Carol

Queen for a Day

Clifford Hope Auditorium was the scene of the 1959-60 Football Homecoming Coronation. The ceremony began under the color softened stagelights of an otherwise darkened auditorium. The procession of the royal couples was accompanied, musically, by the High School Honor Symphony. Each candidate and her escort were individually spotlighted as they approached the velvet-draped stage. Queen Carol Sterling's reign began upon the completion of the processional when she was crowned by senior Co-captains of the football squad. A salute to the queen was presented by the Honor Symphony as they entertained with "Belle of the Ball." A spirited pep assembly, directed by the junior class, followed.

The Homecoming events were highlighted by the football game with Pratt which was preceded by a snake dance, bonfire, and pep rally. During halftime of the game the Garden City High School Band presented a fine demonstration of precision marching. The climax of Queen Carol's reign came at the Homecoming Dance in Alta Brown Auditorium. A final tribute was presented to the queen in the closing hours of her reign as the Blue Notes dedicated "You're Just Too Marvelous" to her majesty.

Buffs Make Good Showing

In their first year in the W. C. K. L. and in their third and last year under Coach Philip Stringer, the Garden City High School Buffs finished in the first division of the expanded seven-team league, after a season of tough competition. During the 1960-61 year the Buffs will have a new coach and will again face rough competition. Although Coach Stringer has not yet indicated in what school he will coach, the Buffaloes wish him luck in his new position.

The Queen's Dance!

Queen Kathy's Reign

It was Basketball Homecoming, 1960. The crowd in Ben Grimsley Gymnasium waited excitediy for the coronation ceremonies to begin. This excitement grew more intense as the procession of homecoming royalty marched through an aisle, made by Pep Club girls and cheerleaders, and moved across the floor to the throne. A fanfare by the G. C. H. S. Pep Band heralded the long-awaited moment. Kathy Archibald was crowned Garden City High School Basketball Queen of 1960.

Queen Kathy's reign was one of happiness. She and her attendants and fellow students watched as the Buffaloes defeated the Pratt Greenbacks in their final home appearance of 1960. Then, by traveling "Over The Rainbow," everyone enjoyed one of the best homecoming dances ever presented in G. C. H. S. With the end of the Dance, Queen Kathy's reign lapsed into memories, to be weighed and treasured in careful hands.

Buffs Become Competitive In State-Wide Competition

Garden City wrestlers of 1959-1960 completed their most successful season in recent years. Highlighting this season was a first-place trophy at Garden City's own invitational tournament and a third-place rating in the district meet. The Buffs also managed a 26-22 team victory over their only W. C. K. L. wrestling opponent, Russell. Ten Garden City wrestlers qualified for the regional meet, and one of these, James Oeding, progressed to the state matches.

Memories

Memories of School Life vary for each individual, just as the activities, ideas, and friends shaping these memories are different for each. Yet, in all of these differing viewpoints are special memories common to all. These dominant themes, memories of this year's School Life, are summarized here.

Remember the noble attitudes in response to the dress code? (And the special Dress-Up Days?) Remember the Christmas Formal when all patriots converged to make the decorations

Remember those rousing pep assemblies? (And the truth in the skits' prophecies?) Remember the color guard at assemblies? (And the hours of practice leading to performances of all kinds?)

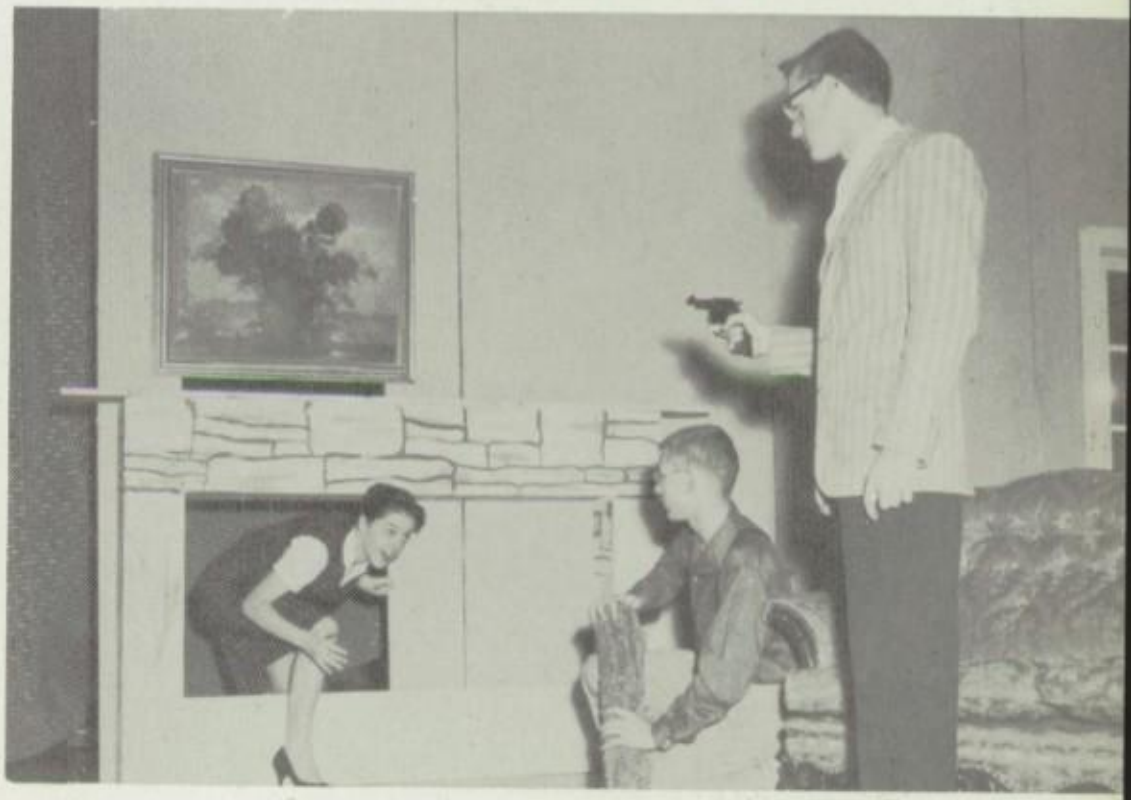
Mysterious Goings-On

Applause from the hands of a wonderfully large audience rewarded the class of '61 as they presented their junior play, "Cat O' Nine Tails." A fine performance by the cast, directed by Mr. Goldsberry, resulted from their many rehearsals.

The play, a mystery comedy, was set in an isolated vacation lodge. Mr. Gordon (James Arwine) possessed valuable papers coveted by the illusive international criminal, Cat O' Nine Tails. Threats upon the life of Theodora Maitland (Susan Vance) and the disappearance of the caretaker (Robert Hopkins) brought two competing detectives (Margaret Sughrue and Edward Hebrlee) to attempt a solution of the mystery. Interwoven through the plot were the actions of the nervous Mrs. Gordon (Janice Hinkle) and those of the newly weds, the Gordons' son and the caretaker's daughter (Donald Towns and Alice Shea), and the Shakespeare-quoting errand boy (Philip Dick). The mystery wound itself through secret tunnels and hypnosis to its solution, involving the pet dog's capture of Cat O' Nine Tails, once known as Henry, the errand boy.

"But Rover's gentle as a lamb!"



"Don't shoot! I'm coming."

Miss Maitland, can you speak?"

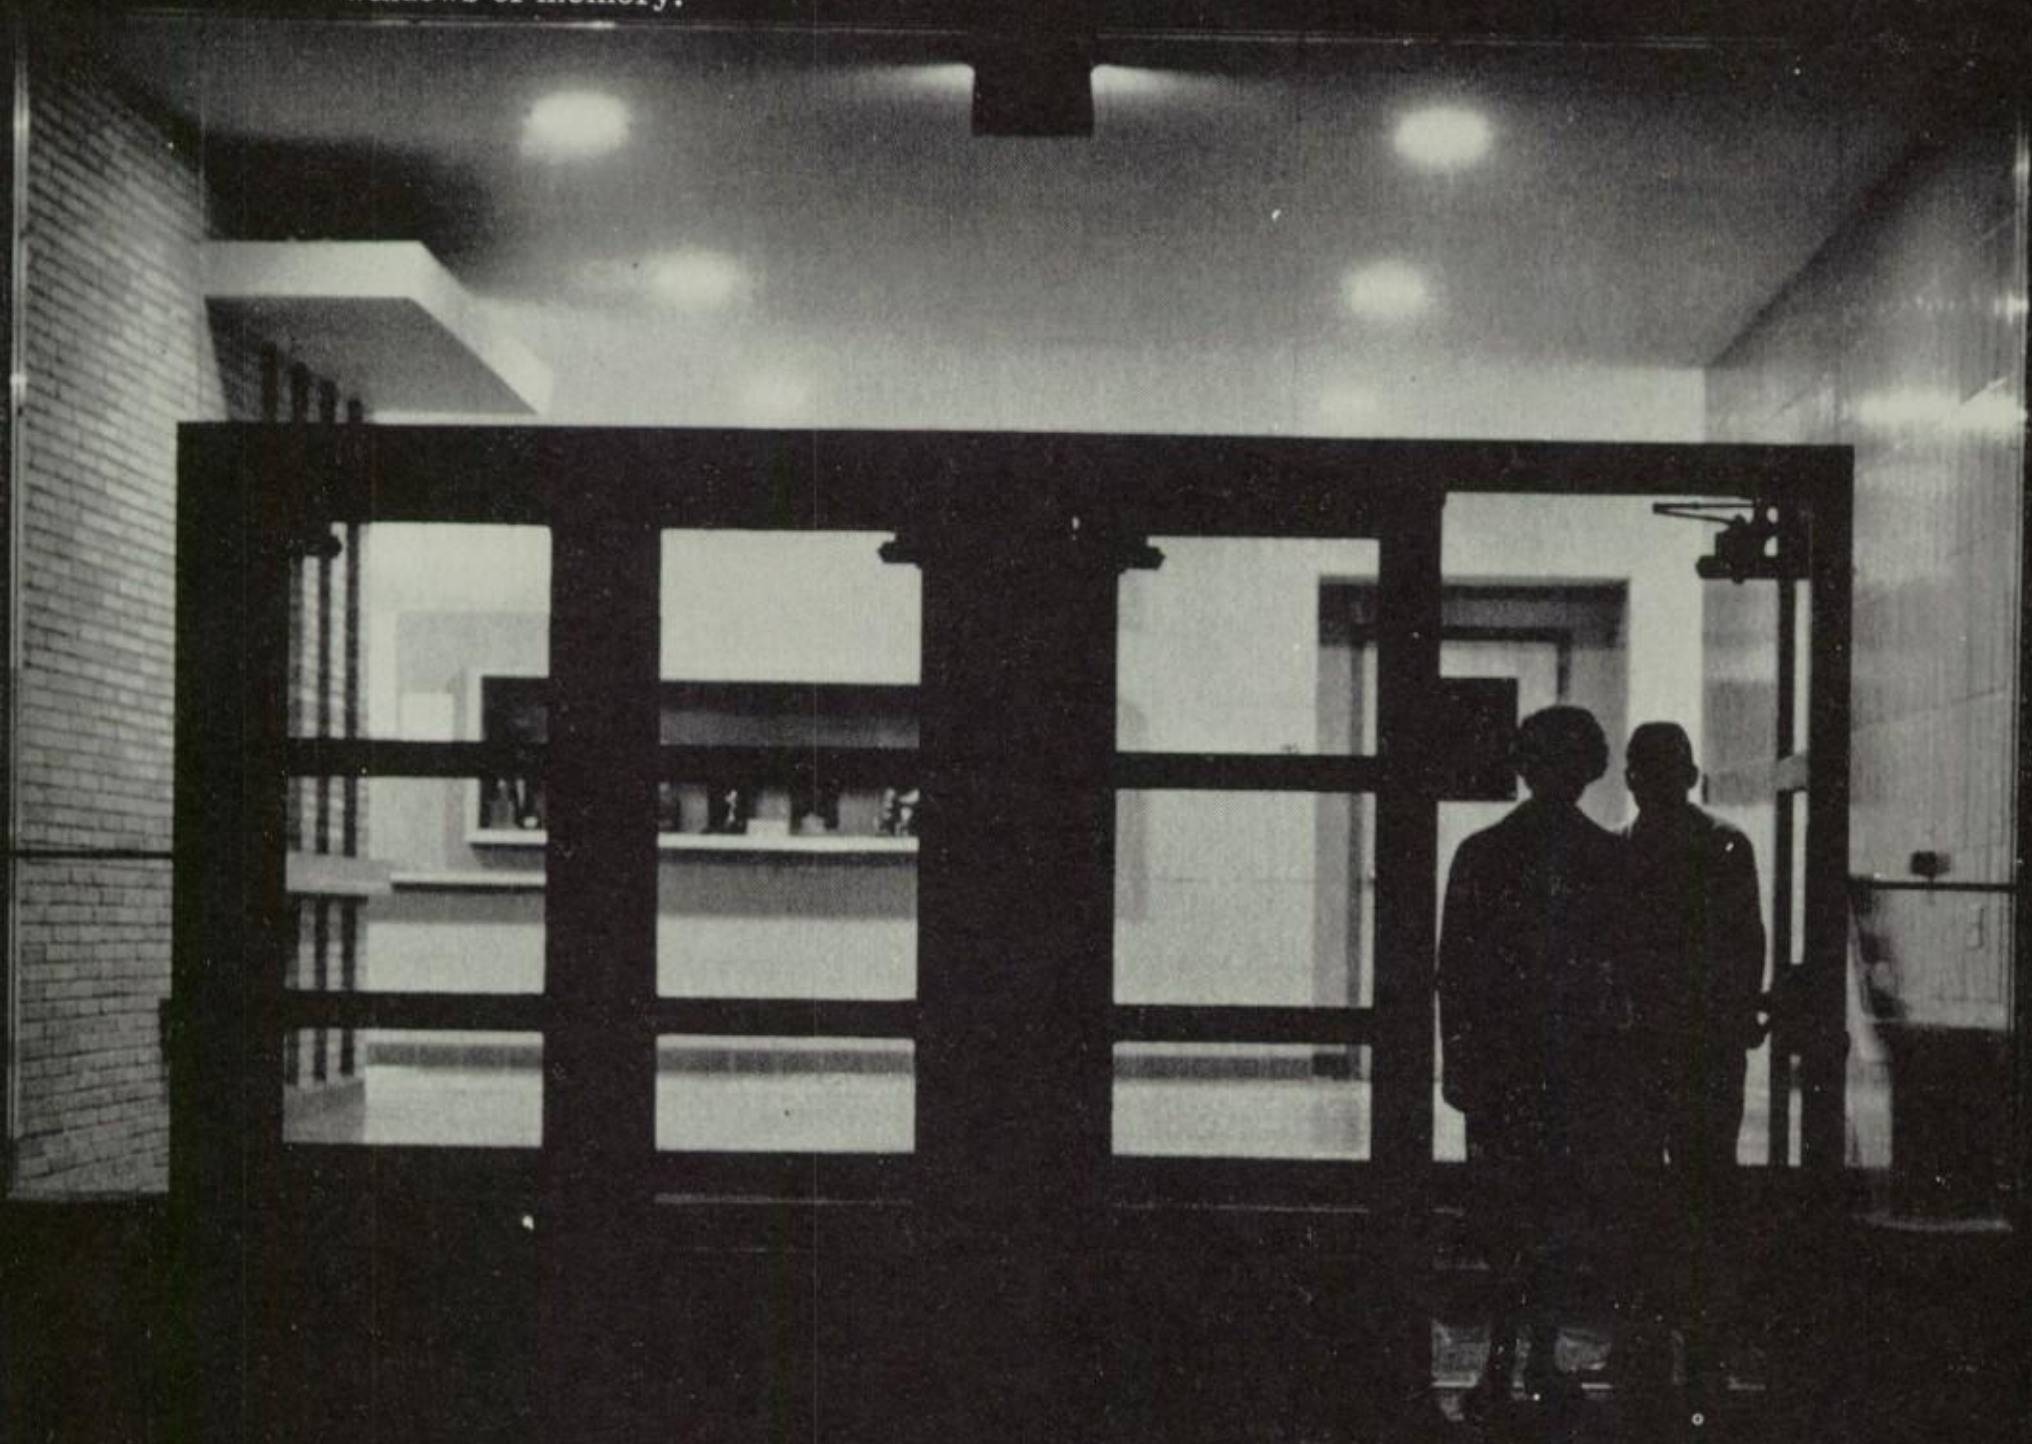
Learning Hands

As editors of the 1959-1960 BUFFALO, we have been required to stop and consider the creative value of our HANDS. Although HANDS are only tools of the mind, they often determine the extent to which we may apply our latent intellect.

As graduating seniors of Garden City High School, we are able to review the part which teaching, guiding, acting, working, winning, and performing HANDS have played in molding our high school experiences into cherished memories. Our eager HANDS opened doors to new experience in learning and in living during our sophomore year. An active year as juniors came to a climax as HANDS of many varied abilities united to create "South Sea Islands." This, our senior year, has been, perhaps, the most rewarding and memorable of all. Now, as the door to high school life closes after us, we look back on these valuable experiences through windows of memory.



So, as prospective college students and as citizens of an uncertain world, we find many other doors waiting before us. Again our eager and willing HANDS reach for success and happiness in new environs. Our high school memories, however, will always serve as a source of joy and understanding as we take each additional step through life.

It is with this formal farewell that we, as representatives of the graduating class of '60, challenge future graduates of G. C. H. S. to make an equal, or even greater, effort to make their high school education a valuable and rewarding experience.

Miss Richardson - This year has really been enjoyable for me. We really had some fun in homemaking class. FHA was great too. I'll never forget the trip to the FHA convention and Manhatten. Thanks so much. Good luck to you always, and I hope this first year of teaching will be one you'll want to remember.

Marilyn Caldwell.
